ADRIANNE LENKER SHARES NEW SONG OFF FORTHCOMING ALBUM, ANNOUNCES SOLO TOUR DATES

LISTEN TO "symbol"; abysskiss OUT OCT. 5 VIA SADDLE CREEK

Last month, Adrienne Lenker announced her new solo album, abysskiss* (out 10/5 on Saddle Creek), and shared the stunning first single off the record, "cradle." Today, she shares the swirling and captivating new song "symbol." Ever wary of discussing the inspiration behind her songs so as to not take away anyone's individual interpretation, Lenker has kindly left us with the following thoughts on "symbol."

While I was resting for a week between tours, "symbol" came through. I think it was born out of the feeling of wanting to feel at home somewhere amidst the blur of constant travel. Writing it helped me articulate the recognition of a very deep sense of home contained within the warmth of my loved ones and friends made visible in something as simple as a smile.

PRAISE FOR "cradle"

"Lenker has found the sweet spot between a wail and a whisper. Loud or quiet, her songs thrive there."
- Pitchfork

"Compared to Big Thief's densely packed anthems, the song floats like a whisper, with a kind of music-box delicacy. But it hits hard." - NPR Music

"'Earth is born/To wound and heal,' she sings, contrasting her situation with the bigger picture, not that you get the sense that realization is bringing her much solace. That contradiction is what makes this unassuming song such a rich place to dwell." - Rolling Stone [Songs You Need to Know]

"A gentle folk lullaby...marked by mercilessly pretty arpeggios and a spectral vocal performance." - Stereogum

The Saddle Creek Store will offer a limited-edition version of abysskiss (limited to 500) in "black and cloudy clear." Pre-order it now.
