"her biggest, boldest record yet." - Rolling Stone (4.5/5)

"Her sound leans into cinematic pop, with string flourishes by a 14-piece orchestra and eerie effects woven into her sepia-toned vocals. Even the record's coziest moments sound vast."

- The New York Times

"'All Mirrors' is not an easy album to listen to—it doesn't lend itself to passive consumption. You have to absorb it on its own terms or not at all, and that's exciting."
- The Wall Street Journal

"Her newfound embrace of violins, violas and cellos elevates her shadowy, often synth-infused rock to extraordinarily goosebump-inducing heights, making All Mirrors her third consecutive (and likely best) masterpiece to date.” - Paste (9.5/10)

"The album is an extended meditation on the vagaries of fortune through regeneration, but for the listener, the experience is pure bliss.” - Under The Radar, (9/10)
