“[Angel Olsen’s] sound leans into cinematic pop, with string flourishes by a 14-piece orchestra and eerie effects woven into her sepia-toned vocals. Even [All Mirrors]’ coziest moments sound vast.” - New York Times

“many moments on [All Mirrors]...are heart stopping.” - NPR’s All Songs Considered

"The breathtaking songs of [All Mirrors] are fleshed out by a 12-piece string section and deliver grand gestures about romance, authenticity, and being simply at the mercy of how we feel."

- Pitchfork

"All Mirrors is Olsen's stunning, most personal record yet." - Rolling Stone

"[Angel Olsen's] most expansive album yet." - Billboard

"one of the most exciting voices in contemporary music . . ."

- Chicago Tribune

Angel Olsen is currently on the road playing sold out shows across the country in support of All Mirrors, her new album released last month on Jagjaguwar. Today, Olsen extends the All Mirrors tour and announces a spring 2020 Southeastern run where she'll bring her "almost Kabuki-like theatricality" (The Ringer) back to the states to play cities not yet visited for this album, including a hometown show at Asheville's Thomas Wolfe Auditorium and a performance at North Charleston's High Water Festival. Tickets for newly-announced dates are on sale this Friday, Nov. 22 at 10am local time and all dates can be found below.

Angel has partnered with Spotify to create an immersive fan experience called Behind All Mirrors. It will take place on Nov 23, 3-8pm in Brooklyn at Villain. The event will walk fans through an experiential installation, immersing them in a labyrinth of otherworldly spaces and sounds celebrating the visual inspirations behind the "All Mirrors" video and highlighting the sonic layers of the title track of her new album.
