Melbourne-based band Rolling Blackouts Coastal Fever releases a new single, "Cars In Space," and an accompanying video. "Cars In Space" is "the swirling words and thoughts before a breakup," says Fran Keaney. It's bold and classic, and propelled by the band's singular chemistry. Its accompanying video, directed by Nick Mckk and Julia Jacklin, is set in broad daylight at an old-school Australian drive-in.

"Cars In Space" is the first taste of new music from Rolling Blackouts C.F. since their "In The Capital" / "Read My Mind" 7", and its predecessor, 2018's Hope Downs, "a debut album that applies their infectious brand of motorik jangle rock to lovelorn ruminations and geopolitical laments" (Pitchfork). Hope Downs was released to an incredible reception, earning year-end praise from Pitchfork, Rolling Stone, Stereogum, Paste, and more. Meanwhile, the band's renowned live show led to selling-out their mammoth Hope Downs Australian tour, as well as sold-out performances in London, San Diego, San Francisco, Denver, Chicago, Toronto, Vancouver, Philadelphia, New York City and more. The huge touring schedule also included shows at the world's biggest music festivals, from Coachella, The Great Escape, Primavera, and Shaky Knees to Lowlands, Pukkelpop, Green Man and Splendour in the Grass.
