Today, Norwegian multidisciplinary artist Jenny Hval presents a new single, “Bonus Material.” It follows the widely acclaimed The Practice of Love, which was released last year via Sacred Bones. “Bonus Material” is sparse and celestial, floating with Hval’s light vocals and twinkling keys. It features saxophone by Espen Reinertsen, who appeared on The Practice of Love. “It is an unfinished track about unfinished substances leaking into one another,” says Hval. “Trash practicing love.”

Additionally, Hval is pleased to announce her rescheduled North American tour dates. For The Practice of Love tour, Hval will examine material from the album, exploring sonic, visual, and choreographic ideas in order to stage the writing process as a performative practice. Tickets go on sale INFO and a full list of dates can be found below. More dates will be announced in the coming weeks.

"[Jenny Hval]'s an outsider claiming a piece of the mainstream for herself without sacrificing what makes her music so special." - Pitchfork

"Hval's open-ended consideration feels extraordinarily radical — one beyond politics and closer to a remembering of something mystical and ancient." - The FADER

"Hval's [The Practice of Love] is a refreshing reminder of music's inherent immediacy, its power to attenuate the senses into something more present, weirder..." - Nylon

"[The Practice is Love] is contemplation at its most sensuous and exhilarating." - Billboard

"Hval's work is always conceptually layered and well-executed, but The Practice Of Love is among her best, an engaging pop album that runs on pure intuition." - AV Club
