Ducks Ltd. will release their debut album, Modern Fiction, on October 1st via Carpark Records, and play shows in their hometown of Toronto and New York City. Today, Ducks Ltd. shares the new single/video, “Under The Rolling Moon,” featuring backing harmonies from The Beths on its sped-up Syd Barrett-stylings. Evan Lewis originally demoed the track with different lyrics. After asking Tom McGreevy to sing, McGreevy wrote new lyrics in about 20 minutes while he was making pasta in the kitchen one night and the two rebuilt it from there. “Under The Rolling Moon’ is about trying to be there for a friend who is in a moment of crisis,” says McGreevy. “Some of the frustration maybe of witnessing someone else’s extremely recognizable self-defeating behaviour, but mostly just the feeling of caring for them, knowing they can be ok and hoping that they can find their way to seeing that.”

For the accompanying video, directed by Ambar Navarro (Soccer Mommy, Stef Chura, Anna Burch) and Max Flick, the band “was kinda aiming to make something that feels like a low to mid budget video in 1985, loosely inspired by some of the Cure videos and the video for Grant McLennan's 'Easy Come Easy Go.' I feel like there is something about the awkwardness of early music videos, before people really knew what they were supposed to be or how they were supposed to act in them, that neatly dovetails with our own inherent awkwardness.”

Across Modern Fiction, Ducks Ltd. sharpen their fondness for boundless jangle-pop. Echoes of ‘80s indie pop abound, but they never overwhelm. Across 10 cheery-sounding songs, they explore contemporary society in decline, examining large scale human disaster through personal turmoil. Modern Fiction and its masterful melodies and depressive fun confirms it: great things are here, and sometimes, all you need is a good friend to realize it.
