"An all-timer. A masterpiece. They really did it this time." - Steven Hyden, UPROXX

"A 20-song epic of kaleidoscopic invention, striking beauty, and wiggled-out humor, rambling far beyond the bounds of their previous work" - Pitchfork [9.0, BEST NEW MUSIC]

"As sonic adventurers, as a collective organism, as vessels for a range of piercing emotions, Big Thief have never been more exciting. Somehow, their double album is their best, most consistently engaging album yet." - Stereogum

"Big Thief seems to draw from a bottomless well of creativity." - Associated Press

"When I reviewed Big Thief's Two Hands in 2019, I mentioned that it carried the excitement of a creative talent hitting a peak. Dragon is somehow even better, as her songwriting grows richer and the band's playing is even more telepathic."

- Wall Street Journal

Today, Big Thief release their highly-anticipated double album, Dragon New Warm Mountain I Believe In You, via 4AD. In conjunction, they also unveil a charming and insightful video for one of its tracks, "Red Moon." In order to bring in some new energy, they invited long-time friend Mat Davidson of Twain to join in on one of the DNWMIBIY recording sessions, specifically, the one that took place with Scott McMicken in his home studio in Tucson, AZ. This was the first time that Big Thief had ever brought in a 5th instrumentalist for such a significant contribution. His fiddle and vocals weave a heavy presence, notably on single "Spud Infinity" and the smokin', upbeat roadhouse celebration "Red Moon." The video - filmed by Adrienne's brother Noah Lenker - captures the live take that eventually ended up on the album, placing the viewer literally right in the middle of the action.
